Brunt, Samuel.
A voyage to Cacklogallinia, with a description of the religion, policy, customs and manners of that country, by Captain Samuel Brunt; reproduced from the original edition, 1727, with an introduction by Marjorie Nicolson. New York, Pub. for the Facsimile text society by Columbia university press, 1940.
xv p., facsim.: 1 p. l., 167 p. front. 20 cm. (Half title: Facsimile text society. Publication no. 48)
The original edition has imprint: London, Printed by J. Watson in Black-Fryers, and sold by the booksellers of London and Westminster, 1727.
"A voyage to Cacklogallinia has sometimes been attributed to Swift ... sometimes ... to Defoe. There is, however, no good reason to believe that either Defoe or Swift was concerned in its authorship, except in so far as both gave impetus to lesser writers in this form of composition."—Introd.
